she learned how to read food labels when she was 13 and grew repulsed by the amount of impurities and additives, triggering orthorexic anorexia that would come and go for years.